

Kia ora,

My name is Rebecca Conway, I am a graduate student with the University of Victoria completing my thesis as part of my Master of Social Work degree program.

The topic of my thesis is ‘How does working in child protection affect the wholistic personal wellbeing of Indigenous child protection social workers?’

Do you self-identify as an Indigenous social worker (this includes First Nations, Inuit, Metis, and Indigenous peoples from other countries)?

Have you worked as a frontline child protection social worker for a minimum of 2 years over the last 5 years?

Would you like to give back to the wholistic wellbeing of Indigenous social workers?

If you feel drawn to share your experience as an Indigenous child protection social worker, please reach out to me for further information and participant package.

Please feel free to share this with others who you think might be interested.

Nga mihi
Rebecca Conway

For further information please e-mail rebeccaconway@uvic.ca. This research is being conducted under the supervision of Dr. Billie Allan (Associate Professor, UVic School of Social Work) who can be contacted by e-mail at allanb@uvic.ca.

You can also contact the Human Research Ethics Office at the University of Victoria at 250-472-4545 or ethics@uvic.ca, to verify the ethical approval of this study, or to raise any concerns you might have.

UVIC